BACA DENIES GRAB FOR REPUBLICAN PRIMARIES

Says Meeting of Executive Committee was Called by Him Merely to Discuss Things for Good of Party.

ROMERO ISSUES CALL FOR COMMITTEE JULY 27TH

Elfrigo Baca, candidate for the Republican nomination for congress, today denied statements to the effect that in his call for a meeting of the executive committee of the Republican county committee of Bernalillo county, he had in view a plan to grab the authority of the chairman, Sheriff Jesus Romero, issue the call for the primaries himself and thus make sure of the Bernalillo county delegation for his candidacy.

Sheriff Romero today issued a formal call for a meeting of the Republican county committee, to be held in the court house Monday afternoon, July 27, the call being signed by himself as chairman and by Charles Chadwick as secretary. The call, which appears in full in The Herald's advertising columns today, states the purpose of the meeting to fix date and places for the primary election, and to apportion the number of delegates to the county convention.

Efforts to reach Sheriff Romero this afternoon were unsuccessful, and it is not known what his view is on the Baca executive committee call. Mr. Baca flatly denied any ulterior purpose in issuing the call.

WOODEN LEG IS "APPAREL"

So Rules Ohio Industrial Commission, Denying Claim for Damages.

Columbus, O.—Is a wooden leg wearing apparel? The Ohio industrial commission has so ruled. George F. Reufel of Cleveland had applied for state compensation for the loss of a leg. It proved that it was a wooden leg, crushed in machinery.

Reufel claimed that the law did not specify that the leg must be a natural one, to entitle the victim to compensation. Then the commission decided that the leg was not a leg, but apparel.

CITY IS ATTRACTIVE

Brunswick Has Many Interesting Things for Sightseer.

Many Medieval Churches Are Well Worthy of a Visit—The Rathaus, Palace and Cathedral Have Each Their Own Value.

Berlin.—The city of Brunswick has many attractions for the sightseer. The contents of the Vaterlandisches Museum, apart from its many valuable works of art, include weapons, uniforms, flags, views of Brunswick, autographs, coins, and costumes. The many medieval churches of St. Catharine, seen below, was probably begun in the Romanesque style by Henry the Lion. It was altered and enlarged in the second half of the thirteenth century and restored between 1887 and 1890. The choir dates from 1321. Other attractions include the Rathaus, the palace, and the cathedral.

The Rathaus, a portion of which may be seen on the right of the center view, consists of two wings at right angles to each other. It is a very perfect specimen of Gothic architecture, first mentioned in 1253, rebuilt in 1393-6, and restored in 1841-52. Both stories of both wings have open arcades with graceful tracery. The beams supporting the Gothic roof of the great hall in the interior are richly painted. St. Martin's church, which stands opposite the Rathaus, was originally a Romanesque basilica of the end of the twelfth century and was enlarged in the transition style in the first half of the thirteenth century and completed in 1321.

Brunswick is supposed to have been founded in 861 by Bruno, Duke of Saxony, but Henry the Lion in the twelfth century so greatly strengthened and beautified the city that he may be almost said to be its founder. The town is most irregularly built, with narrow and winding streets. The cathedral, which dates from 1173, and the churches of St. Martin, St. Andrew with its steeple 341 feet high, and St. Catharine are among the principal buildings. A number of the other houses are interesting for their quaintly-carved wooden fronts.

HE NEEDED MORE RELIGION

Young Man Gets Converted and Surrenders Himself to the Law—Escapes at Prison Door.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Overcome by the exhortations of the speakers, a young man arose in the Upper Room Mission in Mercantile place, and announcing he had recently escaped from the sheriff of San Francisco, where he was wanted on a larceny charge, asked for aid in leading a better life.

He exhibited a pair of field hand-cuffs to prove his story, and declared that he wanted to give himself up and serve his sentence. Deputy Constable S. A. Golden was summoned and started for the county jail with the "convert."

The sight of the grim walls of the jail, however, proved too much for him and he made his getaway from the unsuspecting officer, who was left without even his ex-prisoner's name.

PENZANCE IS 300 YEARS OLD

Picturesque Little Town Soon to Celebrate 300th Anniversary of Incorporation as a Borough.

London.—The picturesque little town of Penzance, well known to lovers of Gilbert and Sullivan's comic operas, which looks out on the blue water of Mount's Bay, is about to celebrate the 300th anniversary of its incorporation as a borough. It is the westernmost town in England, being ten miles from the land's end.

Here the Spaniards made their only hostile landing in England, when they sacked the town and some adjacent villages.

In 1645 it paid dearly for its support of the royalist cause, the round heads under Fairfax laying the place waste. Algerian and other piratical hordes at one time greatly harassed these parts which fact may have suggested "The Pirates of Penzance."

Doubtless the greatest treasure among the archives of the borough is the charter of incorporation granted by James I and dated May 9, 1614. This ponderous document, made of stout skins, is in Latin in black letter, some portions of it being ornately flourished. A portrait of his majesty is enclosed in the initial letter, and the great seal of England is attached by a silken cord.

Herein are defined the limits of the borough, and authority is given for the use of a common seal. This seal represents the head of St. John the Baptist on a charger, and is said to have been suggested in a punning spirit by the Herald's college, as the name Penzance (Pen-sans) means in the old Cornish language holy head (or, rather, headland), from an ancient chapel which formerly stood there, while the parish church once belonged to the Knights of St. John.

What could be more appropriate for its insignia, they argued, than the much-talked-of head of St. John the Baptist? There is a tradition that King James himself proposed these arms.

SHE SWALLOWS THE MONEY

Woman Conceals Stolen $57.50, but is Given Three Months Imprisonment Anyway.

Glasgow.—A woman who swallowed $57.50 in gold has been sent to prison here.

She stood in the dock with another woman on a charge of attacking and robbing a man and she admitted that, while running away, she swallowed fifteen sovereigns and five half-sovereigns.

When the women were captured, after a chase, no trace could be found of the money, but the police had their suspicions, which were confirmed when the X-rays were brought into use.

One woman, who struck the man in the face, breaking his eyeglasses, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, and the other, who swallowed the money, to three months' imprisonment.

Col. Ted Sullivan, who originated the world's tour, has a plan for a tour of Ireland next fall. Ireland wasn't in the itinerary last fall. His idea is to make up a team of Irish-American leaguers and a team of German-American leaguers and stage special contests in celebration of home rule.

HORSETHIEF TRACED THROUGH CANYON BY POLICE

Mexican, Accompanied by American, Goes Through Tijeras with Two Stolen Ponies. One Escaped Convict

Chief of Police McMullin said today that the two ponies stolen from the Trimble stable Wednesday were traced through Tijeras canyon. A Mexican answering the description of the man who hired the animals at the stable was seen to go through the canyon with two ponies like the missing ones, accompanied by an American, Wednesday afternoon.

The pair headed east. Chief McMullin said today that he had a faint suspicion that the American might be the convict Hudson, who escaped from the state road camp on the Ileta-Albuquerque road Sunday. That, however, was only a guess, the chief said, and he had nothing more.
